

David Huether
Senior Vice President, Research

David Huether is the Senior Vice President for Research at the U.S. Travel Association, where he manages the association's economic, marketing and advocacy research programs. Prior to joining U.S. Travel in January 2011, David served as the Chief Economist of the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) where he served as the organization's economic forecaster as well as a principal spokesman on economic matters important to America's industrial base.

Before coming to the NAM in 1997, he worked as an economist with the Bureau of Economic Analysis at U.S. Department of Commerce.

David received his undergraduate degree from Guilford College in 1990 and his graduate degree in economics from the George Washington University in 1997.

Updated April 2011