

Eric Weber
Vice President, Technology

Mr. Weber is Vice President of technology for the U.S. Travel Association, the nation's leading voice for increasing travel to and within the United States. Mr. Weber leads all technology activities for the organization including Discover America.com - the Official Travel and Tourism Website of the United States. He brings 20 years of corporate IT experience to U.S. Travel.

Previously, Mr. Weber worked for Marriott International managing numerous facets of IT in support of eCommerce, Sales and Marketing. He helped guide key transformation initiatives in areas including Marriott.com and Marriott Rewards, Marriott's loyalty program, supporting record growth.

Prior to Marriott International, Mr. Weber was a Principal at Intelix, a regional IT solutions firm where his primary responsibility was leading the Telecommunications and eBusiness practice area. In his role as Practice Director he oversaw all aspects of the practice area including business development, staffing and service delivery.

Prior joining the leadership team at Intelix Mr. Weber enjoyed a 10 plus year career in the Telecommunications industry where he lead critical business transformation initiatives for companies including Verizon, MCI, Sprint, and Teligent. Leading efforts in the areas of Customer Relationship Management and Ordering and Billing, he managed a variety of complex initiatives and excelled in developing innovative strategies to leverage technology to solve business challenges.

Eric Weber began his profession career at Andersen Consulting (currently Accenture) serving numerous Fortune 500 clients in the Telecommunications and Energy industries.

He is a graduate of the University of Delaware and resides in Oakton, Virginia with his wife and two children.

Updated November 2009